We present:

Melanie, Senior Product Designer at Winkee for 5 years

Hello Meli, thank you for conducting this interview with me. You've been with Winkee for 5 years now. Can you explain the brand in a few words?

Summing up 5 years in a few words is perhaps my biggest challenge in these 5 years (laughs). I can hardly remember a day when working here wasn't fun. That pretty much captures the essence of the brand. Winkee is meant to be fun above all. We've organized our range in a way that there's a suitable gift for every situation and moment in life. Winkee is meant to enrich daily life, and I think our products are quite successful in doing that now.

That sounds like a fun everyday life. At the end of the day, is it more fun or more work?

I would like to put it this way: it is work, but fun should not be neglected despite all the work. We laugh a lot, inspire each other, and share tips. In fact, at Winkee, I usually don't feel like I'm at work but more like in an incredibly creative group where everyone inspires each other, resulting in the creation of the best products.

You've brought many products to life. Can you tell us what your most successful product has been so far?

At this point, the question arises for me about how one defines success. Some measure it by sales numbers, while others define it as their favourite product. I understand success as a product that presented me with a huge challenge, which I subsequently mastered better than anyone thought.

Do I understand correctly that you don't want to reveal your most challenging product to us?

There are, of course, already products that align with my personal definition of success. At the moment, we are working on a very complicated product that all plant lovers will be excited about. However, the product will be introduced in fall 2024, so I can't reveal too much at the moment.

Winkee is launching more than 40 new products this spring, which I find quite a lot. Where do you get all the ideas for such a number of products?

Indeed, we are constantly developing products, but not all of them are implemented immediately. So, today we have a pool of certainly 200 items just waiting to be realized. Apart from that, we consistently develop new items. We get ideas from current trends that we follow on social media and in retail, as well as from our sales experience. If we know that certain themes work well, we continue to develop in that direction.

But why do you wait with the implementation and not release them all at once? I think your loyal fans would be happy.

It's not that simple, unfortunately. Often, when developing, we're not 100% satisfied with the product, and we revisit it at a later date. In such a situation, we often come up with the best ideas. In addition, in today's world, so many incredible things happen every day that you don't feel good about a product the next day. For example, if a war starts somewhere in the world, you don't want to release a skull-themed product the next day. I think it just doesn't fit. However, since the product is still good, we wait for a time that feels better for us and the product. In the end, we want to bring joy and not accidentally spark controversy.

Meli, I thank you very much for the interview and the insights into your sometimes very personal Winkee world. We look forward to many more great products that make the world a little happier.

Thank you very much too. I gladly take on the mission of making the world a bit more positive.
